THIS HOTEL IS DA BOMB!

OUTLIVE ANYTHING IN THE WORLD'S FIRST LUXURY UNDERGROUND FALLOUT SHELTER.

You can hope you don't face a catastrophe, or you can be ready. Enter Terravivos. For just $50,000, you can buy a fractional share of an underground network built to withstand the following: a nuclear blast, 450 mph winds, a magnitude-10 earthquake, 1,250-degree fires, 100-pound hailstones, floods, and Bieber fever.

SPACIOUS CAMP

Terravivos consists of 20 self-contained complexes that will hold 172 to 2,000 people.

YOUR NEW NEIGHBORS

Applicants' personalities and professional profiles are assessed to guarantee a variety of skills in the community. "A lot of weirdos do apply, but they get weeded out," says president and founder Robert Vicino.

NICE SHAFT

Entry shafts have a series of 90-degree turns that will dissipate any shock waves—and also make you dizzy on your way down. Wheel!

FULLY LOADED

Complexes will have 75 cubic feet of supplies—clothing, toilet paper, etc.—per person, as well as a one-year supply of food. "I tasted a lot of freeze-dried food, and I picked the best-tasting options," Vicino promises while trying not to vomit.

LAST CHANCE

Each facility will have storage tanks for sperm and ovum cells. It's open to anyone (even if you're not a resident) willing to pay $995. For the cost of a used Civic hatchback, you can make a baby from beyond the gravel

SECOND-RATE SURVIVAL OPTIONS

IF YOU CAN'T AFFORD A SPOT IN THE UNDERGROUND LAIR, TURN TO ONE OF THESE AIDS TO BUY YOURSELF ANOTHER DAY OR TWO.

FOOD INSURANCE
Order a backpackful of freeze-dried meals, including blueberry pancakes, lasagna, beef stroganoff, and milk
